Fireplace Tips

Inspiration Booklet

High ceilings? Go big!
Include a raised sitting area around the fireplace.

French Country

Britannia

Be sure to keep your fireplace proportional to your ceiling height, so that it won't feel too big for the room.

Consider adding a hearth for visual balance and glamour.

Chateau

Tori

Add architectural detail to panels and tiles with a picture-frame style fireplace surround.

A square fireplace pairs well with a 3-sided surround.

Bowen

For a raised linear fireplace, consider a 4-sided surround.

Transitional Look?

Consider ship lap instead of concrete or porcelain tiles. It adds warmth and interest!

Limited floor area?
Add a floating mantel
to the concrete panel design for space to place your home decor!

Classic Vibes...

....or go more Modern!

Option:
Mix and match concrete panels with a hearth and/or floating mantel.

Texture Talk

Use texture to define the style of your fireplace. From farmhouse chic to classic elegance & anything in between.

Heavily patterned textures like DreamCast's Old World provide that vintage, one-of-a-kind look.

Rough, exposed finishes work best in more modern spaces.

Smoothcast is a simpler, clean look. No distraction from the design of the fireplace.

Design Tip

You'll want to repeat textures throughout a space

No limits! Have a bump-out for your fireplace?
Consider wrapping the mantel.

Give the illusion of a floor to ceiling fireplace.
Match the colour of the fireplace to the wall.

Small spaces can have big impact. Think a 1" to 3" depth on the mantel surround. It'll create that focal point and still add "oomph" to the space.

Don't forget about the holidays!
Stockings, candles & decorations.
A deeper mantel, such as the Tuscany, provides that extra space.

Bowen

Colour choice can have a huge impact on your space. The greater the contrast, the more your fireplace will be the focal point of the space.

Consider matching the tone or colour of the fireplace surround to the rest of your living space. It'll create a seamless and clean look throughout.
